ASFMRA Education Approved For Veterans

GELNDALE, CO- The American Society of Farm Managers and Rural Appraisers® (ASFMRA®) has been approved by the Veterans Administration for veterans to use their benefits under the GI Bill® towards education in the agricultural appraisal industry.

ASFMRA core education classes held at the campus in Glendale, Colorado for those seeking their Trainee License, Certified General Appraiser License and for attainment of the Accredited Rural Appraiser designation are part of the Veterans Administration approval.

“This is an incredible opportunity for veterans that want to enter the appraisal profession and work with rural and agricultural property owners. This approval is just one way that ASFMRA is addressing perceived appraiser shortages while assisting our veterans in gaining additional educational and employment opportunities,” commented Dave GaNun, ARA and president of the Society.

For more information on how to apply for benefits under the GI Bill, go to www.vets.gov/education/. For more information on ASFMRA, education go to www.asfmra.org/education. If you are interested in taking advantage of this opportunity or have additional questions, please contact Deanna Ilk, ASFMRA State Certification and Continuing Education Coordinator at (303) 692-1222.
